Chapter 1 by -

I grab my towel and throw on a pair of flip-flops. It's a gorgeous day! The sun is shining, the water is the perfect blue-green color, and I have the day off from school. I love the beach and I go every chance I get! Today is different though. I don't know why, but I can just feel it in my bones.

I taste the salty air and know I'm getting near the ocean. I finally sprint up the dunes and emerge onto the golden sand of the long beach. I find a good spot and lay down my towel. I take off my cover-up dress and plop myself down on the towel, but after only a couple minutes, I'm sweating! I take off my sunglasses and head down to the water. I dip my toe in and find it the perfect temperature: not too cold, but still refreshing! I slowly wade into the water, push off and dive in headfirst.

I am at first greeted with the cool wetness of the water, but then I feel a tug at my feet. I try to swim toward the surface, but something's pulling me down! I fight and fight, but I can't get anywhere! I eventually can't hold my breath any longer and blow it out. I then feel a burning sensation in my lungs and I feel myself sink to the ground and pass out.

When I come to, I am still underwater. I try to push myself up and notice the surface above me, but there is a force holding me back. I swim closer to the surface.

"Your lungs will burn again if you try to get through that," someone says from behind me. I swiftly turn my head and see my brother underwater with me! This can't be real. No, I don't believe this.

"How..." I start, but I can't finish my sentence. My brother was presumed dead 3 years ago when he went to the beach and never came back.

My mouth fell open. "Josh!!" I sobbed and touched his face.

"Emma!" laughed Josh.

"Have you just been living under water this whole time? What have you been eating? do you have company? what if you get eaten?!" I said excitedly.

"slow down Emma! Yes, I have been living under water this whole time and..."

"Oh no! What about mother and father they don't wont know where I am. And they cant handle another child missing or presumed as dead!" squealed Emma. I started to cry softly, it was a mixture of joy and sadness. Suddenly a whole group of mermaids and mermans swam towards me. I looked down at my feet, I didn't have any! instead I had a mermaid tail!

One of the mer mans said something to Josh and Josh gestured for me to swim to him. I did. I followed Josh and the merman to a under water castle.

"This is where you guys live?!" I gasped, the merman nodded and smiled.

" And this is your room while you recover" the merman said as they swam through the big open doors. "while I recover?" I asked

"yes, its takes some time to get used to being able to live underwater" Josh explained "Now you get some rest and I'll be back to check on you later" smiled Josh as he and his friend shut Emma's door's and swam away. I looked around the room and say a floating bed " ahh" yawned Emma and fell into a deep sleep.
